This is the fourth office action for serial number 09/927,670, entitled Clipboard and Reading Stand With light and Drawers, in response to Amendment C filed on October 3, 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8, 10-14, 17, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Richardson 4,619,386 in view of Fisherman 5,176,438. Richardson discloses a base (14), a support (10), an adjuster comprising a stay arm (88) and hinge (85), two compartments (near 18 and 16 being one compartment, and 38 being the other compartment, means for selectively opening and closing the compartments (66 and 28), a light (56), and a device for securing writing material (64) being a spring clip (column 2, lines 2ff) or page holder (64). Richardson discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the retractable light. Fisherman discloses a base (22e and 22f), a support (14 and 22d and 22c), an adjuster (hinge attachment) including a stay arm (22a and 22b), a light (30, 38, and 44), device for writing material (24), spring loaded clip (16) or page holder (16), a telescoping stalk pivotably mounted to the apparatus (near 38 and 44a, column 2, lines 66ff, and see figure 6). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Richardson to have made the light to be retractable and extendable as taught by Fisherman for the purpose of allowing the light to be adjusted relative to the support for increasing or decreasing the amount of light on the clipboard and allowing the light to be moved to any desired position over the reading surface of the clipboard.

Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Richardson 4,619,386 in view of Fisherman 5,176,438 in view of Menaged 5,025,353. Richardson in view of Fisherman discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for page holder being a pair of spaced apart spring loaded tabs. Menaged discloses a base (14), a support (26), an adjuster (24) being a hinge, a securing device being a spring clip (38; see column 4, lines 53ff) or in regards to claim 15 a page holder comprising a pair of spaced apart spring loaded tabs, a light (12), comprising a stalk (54; telescoping see claim 2) pivotably mounted (58) to the apparatus. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Richardson in view of Fisherman to have included the spring loaded tabs as taught by Managed as a better means of securing reading material to the apparatus.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed October 3, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., reading stand or table) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

In response to the arguments the examiner would like to point out that the support(10) is attached to the upper side of the planar base (element 14, see figure 4). The adjuster is attached to the upper side of the planar base (14) which selectively collapses the support (10) downwardly and upwardly relative to the base (14) via grooves (89). Richardson in view of Fisherman and in further view of Managed clearly met all of the limitations of the claimed invention presented by the applicant.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
